

Research Showcase Day Two Review

BibleMouse.com

Understanding Presentations and Feedback

Name: _____

Date: _____

Answer the following questions based on what you learned during today's lesson.

1. What is one objective of today's lesson?

- A. To practice math skills
- B. To present research findings clearly
- C. To play games

2. Why is it important to give constructive feedback to classmates?

3. The heart of the discerning gets ____, and the ear of the wise seeks knowledge.

4. Active listening means paying attention and responding to what someone says.

- True False

5. What should positive feedback start with?

- A. What can be improved
- B. What was done well
- C. How to change the project

6. How can asking questions show genuine interest in learning?

7. Listening shows respect because it demonstrates that we value what others have to ____

8. Sharing knowledge with others does not help us grow.

- True False

9. What is one way to improve communication skills as discussed in the lesson?

- A. Ignoring feedback
- B. Practicing presentations
- C. Avoiding questions

10. Reflect on your research learning journey. What is one thing you learned that surprised you?

Answer Key

1. To present research findings clearly 2. Constructive feedback helps classmates improve their presentations and encourages them to keep learning. 3. knowledge 4. True 5. What was done well 6. Asking questions shows that you want to understand more and are engaged with the topic being presented. 7. say 8. False 9. Practicing presentations 10. I learned that research can be fun and that I enjoy presenting my findings to others.